Complicated Ideology is Costing the State its Social Housing.

Lorcan Sirr

Technological University Dublin, lorcan.sirr@dit.ie

Follow this and additional works at: https://arrow.dit.ie/beschrecmed

Part of the Urban, Community and Regional Planning Commons, and the Urban Studies and Planning Commons

Recommended Citation

PTBR fee is one buck that can’t be passed

LINDA DALY

MARKET WATCH

The trend for short-term serviced lets is creating opportunities for city centre landlords, writes Cian Molloy

---

Complex ideology is costing the state its social housing.

Croll should already be long gone from government. Croll is the type of politician that you want to kick out of government as soon as possible. You build a house on a plot of land that you already own. You have a house on a plot of land that you own. This is what the social housing sector is all about. That’s all there is to it.

But what’s really annoying is that the Irish housing history for the last ten years is a complete disaster. When, as a society, we build houses on plots of land that we own, we get into the whole social housing sector. That’s what you want to get rid of as soon as possible. You build a house on a plot of land that you own. That’s all there is to it.

But what’s really annoying is that the Irish housing history for the last ten years is a complete disaster. When, as a society, we build houses on plots of land that we own, we get into the whole social housing sector. That’s what you want to get rid of as soon as possible. You build a house on a plot of land that you own. That’s all there is to it.

But what’s really annoying is that the Irish housing history for the last ten years is a complete disaster. When, as a society, we build houses on plots of land that we own, we get into the whole social housing sector. That’s what you want to get rid of as soon as possible. You build a house on a plot of land that you own. That’s all there is to it.

But what’s really annoying is that the Irish housing history for the last ten years is a complete disaster. When, as a society, we build houses on plots of land that we own, we get into the whole social housing sector. That’s what you want to get rid of as soon as possible. You build a house on a plot of land that you own. That’s all there is to it.