Graceful catmint is coming up to scratch

The plant species that drives all the feline crazy is robust and highly decorative — just keep away from their sharp claws!

For many years, I couldn’t grow nepeta (also known as catmint or catnip). The plant is ubiquitous and undesirable by the feline family: they have sharp claws and love to scratch into the soft leaves of the nepeta. There is a compound in nepeta called nepetalactone which acts as a magnet for cats, and even some dogs. The plant is a magnet for them.

Nepeta is also known as catmint, catnip or neetima. Whether or not your cat will enjoy it, is debatable. Generally, cats love the leaves. It can also be enjoyed by humans, with some reports of it being used for stressed conditions.

I think the best way to grow nepeta is to keep it away from your cats. Just keep it away from their sharp claws.

I’ve found that nepeta is most effective when used as a barrier, rather than as a focal plant in your garden. It can also be used as a sacrificial plant so that felines don’t go after more valuable plants. It is an excellent plant for self-seeding, and nepeta is easily propagated from seed. It’s a good plant for cats, and it’s also a good plant for felines. It’s a great plant for cats, and it’s also a great plant for felines.

Here are some tips on how to grow nepeta:

1. Choose a sunny spot in your garden for nepeta. It prefers full sun to partial shade.
2. Nepeta is a drought-tolerant plant, so it’s not too finicky about water. Water it regularly, but don’t overwater it.
3. Deadhead nepeta regularly to encourage new growth and prevent the plant from becoming leggy.
4. Nepeta can be propagated from seed or by division. It’s easy to propagate nepeta from seed, and you can get seed from most nurseries and garden centers.

Nepeta is a great plant for cats, and it’s also a great plant for felines. It’s a good plant for cats, and it’s also a good plant for felines.

Nepeta is also great for adding a decorative touch to a garden. It can be planted in borders, rock gardens, or as a groundcover. It’s also a good plant for cats, and it’s also a good plant for felines.

Finally, nepeta is a great plant for cats, and it’s also a great plant for felines. It’s a good plant for cats, and it’s also a good plant for felines.

Grow for it

Do n’t dig it

Two unusual catmints worth looking at

Margery Fish, the great British cottage gardener (1897-1991), was keen on catmints. In her famous tome, The Old Garden, she recommended catmint for its fragrance and for attracting bees, butterflies and other pollinators.

Fish was a keen advocate for using catmints in the garden, saying they were “a sweet and fragrant addition to any garden.” She was particularly fond of nepeta, saying it was “a sweet and fragrant addition to any garden.” She was particularly fond of nepeta, saying it was “a sweet and fragrant addition to any garden.” She was particularly fond of nepeta, saying it was “a sweet and fragrant addition to any garden.” She was particularly fond of nepeta, saying it was “a sweet and fragrant addition to any garden.” She was particularly fond of nepeta, saying it was “a sweet and fragrant addition to any garden.” She was particularly fond of nepeta, saying it was “a sweet and fragrant addition to any garden.” She was particularly fond of nepeta, saying it was “a sweet and fragrant addition to any garden.” She was particularly fond of nepeta, saying it was “a sweet and fragrant addition to any garden.” She was particularly fond of nepeta, saying it was “a sweet and fragrant addition to any garden.” She was particularly fond of nepeta, saying it was “a sweet and fragrant addition to any garden.” She was particularly fond of nepeta, saying it was “a sweet and fragrant addition to any garden.”
