

2017-01-14

Atlantic Tabor, by Patrick Claffey, Tomasz Bereska and Tomasz Szustek.

Eamon Maher

Institute of Technology, Tallaght, eamon.maher@ittdublin.ie

Follow this and additional works at: <http://arrow.dit.ie/ittbus>

Part of the Education Commons

Recommended Citation

Maher, E. (2017) Atlantic Tabor, by Patrick Claffey, Tomasz Bereska and Tomasz Szustek, Irish Times, Sat. Jan. 14th.

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the School of Business and Humanities at ARROW@DIT. It has been accepted for inclusion in Articles by an authorized administrator of ARROW@DIT. For more information, please contact yvonne.desmond@dit.ie, arrow.admin@dit.ie, brian.widdis@dit.ie.

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial-Share Alike 3.0 License

Atlantic Tabor by Patrick Claffey, Tomasz Bereska and Tomasz Szustek

Browser review

Eamon Maher

Sat, Jan 14, 2017, 00:00

This book was inspired by a poem by Patrick Claffey published in Poetry Ireland Review on the enduring pull of Croagh Patrick throughout his time abroad working as a missionary priest.

Atlantic Tabor consumed him, with the 'craggy faces' of the pilgrims urging him to give expression to the distinctive character of the Holy Mountain. When Claffey was doing the background research for his book, fate intervened in the shape of two Polish photographers who were out in the field gathering the images that complement his elegant prose.

The photos are a mixture of black and white (for the physical landscape) and colour (for pilgrims' faces) and when viewed in conjunction with the text, they enable readers to appreciate the Croagh Patrick experience.

For Claffey, pilgrimage allows people to step out of place and time. At a time when traditional religious practice is on the wane, people are still searching for new methods of communing with the transcendent. Atlantic Tabor is a unique and aesthetically pleasing production, one that may well point to a way of pursuing one's own spiritual quest outside of the traditional churches.

Stay in touch with culture that matters. Subscribe.

Click here to sign up to the Irish Times Book Club

MORE FROM THE IRISH TIMES

Books	Music	People	Opinion
Poetry: The Square in Front of the Archangels	On Best Behaviour, Louisa Johnson takes a Tove-Lo turn in the right direction	Emily Logan: Don't judge Irish women's rights by 'lesser standards'	Now look here – An Irishwoman's Diary on virtual reality

SPONSORED

Lifting the diamond to a higher level	Advice for Irish companies preparing for Brexit? Act now	Voyage into Heaney country at HomePlace, Northern Ireland's latest cultural magnet	Our trip North: 'I couldn't believe how much it had changed'
---------------------------------------	--	--	--

ADVERTISEMENT

ADVERTISEMENT